Two-Day International Conference on G-20 Inaugurated

Shri. A.C. Sadhwani, the Secretary of SHKES, illuminated the commendable philanthropic initiatives undertaken by the society. Graciously acknowledging the visionary leadership of Sant Hirdaram Sahibji, he expressed heartfelt gratitude for Santji's profound vision in empowering women. He also highlighted the noteworthy recognition bestowed upon Sant Hirdaram Nagar, formerly Bairagarh, by the government – a testament to the transformative impact of Santi's altruistic endeavors carried out by the staunch follower Shraddhey Siddh Bhauji. In addition, Shri. Sadhwani underscored the significance of instilling values and sanskaras in children.

Dr. Dherendra Pandey, in his address, shed light on the profound aims and objectives of the G20 summit hosted in India in 2023. Expressing optimism, he articulated a vision for this period as the "Amrit Kaal" (Golden Era) for India, foreseeing a transformative phase in the nation's development. Dr. Pandey's hopeful anticipation extended to the aspiration that by the year 2047, India would undoubtedly emerge as a "Viksit Bharat" (Developed India). This ambitious outlook not only underscores the significance of India's role in global forums like the G20 but also reflects a collective aspiration for sustained progress and prosperity on the national stage.

Dr. Heike Englert eloquently emphasized the profound objective of G20, encapsulating the vision of "One Earth, One Family, and One Future." Delving into the essence of this global perspective, she articulated the belief in unity and shared responsibility for the well-being of our planet and its inhabitants. She underscored the paramount importance of health, stating unequivocally, "Health is everything, and without health, everything is nothing." This poignant declaration highlights the foundational role that well-being plays in individual lives and the broader context of global progress.

Mr. Sachin Mhaske talked about the concept of the global village, In today's interconnected and technologically advanced society, the world has become a tightly knit community where information, ideas, and events swiftly traverse geographical boundaries. The primitive notion of a global village, although conceived in an era different from ours, aptly captures the essence of our interconnectedness and the shared impact of global events. In the digital age, where communication transcends borders instantaneously, the concept of a global village has evolved from a mere metaphor to a tangible reality, emphasizing the continued significance of this concept in shaping our understanding of the modern world.

The first day of the international conference featured two technical sessions on Economic Policy and Global Stability, as well as Social Welfare, Health, and Equity, with research paper presentations. A Souvenir was also released during the occasion.
